John S. Bowers M.D.

My old friend,

It gives me pleasure to inform you that the Texas Medical College at the Annual Commencement and conferring of Degrees on the 15th Instant conferred on you the Honorary Degree of M. D. - Medicinal Doctor. It is an honorary degree, but as the same degree was years ago conferred on you by the Medical College of Memphis, the present one is styled an honorary ad eundem - to wit, to the same as you already possess. - I have your degree here and will forward it by mail on my first visit to Houston. - The Faculty have no engraved blanks except those assigned for ordinary graduates, so they filled up your degree on one of these parchments. This is frequently done.

The Medical College is already tolerably successful — but a new impulse is now being given to it, — the chair of Obstetrics vacant by the death of Prof. Callaway has just been filled by the election of Dr Paine who appears to me to be eminently competent. The Chair of Anatomy vacant by the death of Dr Torgerson will be filled by an election on the 5th April next. The Board of Examiners meet at Marshall at the same time as the State Medical Association. The course of Lectures will open next fall with a full corps of Professors and all appliances.

It is not indispensable for you to write a Thesis on the occasion of your degree; but it is customary. Let me suggest that you write a sketch or account of the Yellow Fever, as it appeared in Columbus. It may be as general as you please, but the more you go into details the more satisfactory it will be. Such a paper from you will be very acceptable — and if permitted by you, it will be published in Prof. Penning's Journal. For my own part, not practising medicine I am out of the profession, and take no interest in personal disputes. But most members of the profession consider Dr Harrison's denial that the disease was Yellow Fever, as an absurdity. I saw the vials of black vomit exhibited by him at Waller. They were unmistakably ordinary specimens of ordinary black vomit of a common type of Yellow Fever.

I have nothing new to report about Eugene - every thing comfortable and sufficiently prosperous, my own health very good for my years, 70, the 13th August.

We have had a violent storm today - very high water - now, 10 o'clock at night, the water is subsiding under a Norther - no damage done as I can hear of.

Can you come down and see me - say at the State Fair in May? - yourself and as many of your family as you can bring.

By the way, would it not be well for you to become a member of the State Medical Association? The Association appears to me a permanent institution - it may hereafter be a source of pride and satisfaction to your children. The annual Meeting of the Association this year is at Marshall and commences April 4th.

I beg to be remembered kindly to all your family and to W.^m Darden.

Ever your old friend

Affectionately

Asahel Smith

P.S. Kind regards to Dr. Harrison
